BULLETIN

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The London Star said today that "reports suggest" United States marine landing parties in the Solomon islands "have been strengthened and are making some progress."

The paper said the marines, "who are believed to have tanks and landing barges and special types of artillery, still hold bridgeheads they established Friday and Saturday."

(By Associated Press)

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 12.—Jungle-hardened American marines battled on today in hand-to-hand clashes to broaden hard-won footholds in the Solomon islands while supporting Allied airmen struck new blows upon Jap bases and shipping along the 3,000-odd mile front.

The Leathernecks' progress was hidden in official silence but the latest information, issued in Washington, was that operations were continuing in the area of Tulagi, two-mile-long island in the southwestern Solomons.

Await Definite Word

More definite word was not expected until a let-up in the operations permits Vice Admiral Robert Lee Chormley, Allied commander in the South Pacific, who said in a dispatch to the War Department, to detail an account of his own limited communications.

But whatever the situation, the U. S. navy, in a statement in Washington, hailed the landing of the marines on the shores of Tulagi as having "opened the doors to an Allied offensive in the South Pacific."

From this it was taken that the land, sea and air assault which began five days ago was making headway.

General MacArthur's headquarters, still silent on the main operation, told of the fourth air attack with as many as 100 B-24 Superfortresses, which, according to the dispatch, destroyed a Jap base on New Britain, destroyed two Jap bases and possibly five Jap zero fighters over New Guinea; another raid on Jap ships south of Timor, Dutch East Indies; and an attack upon the Kei Islands.

Heavy Attack on Aleutians

In the Aleutians attack begun by navy surface craft last Saturday and continued the next day by naval bombers, guns of cruisers and destroyers knocked out shore batteries, set fires and caused heavy damage in the invaders' camp area on Kiska Island and shelled a group of ships, the navy said.

The attack, timed simultaneously with the offensive in the Solomons, left at least two enemy ships damaged and a third sunk, making a total of 21 vessels knocked out since the Japanese made their appearance in the Aleutians.

M'SWEENEY IS OHIO WINNER

Democrats Pick Former Congressman As Governor Candidate

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12.—Ohio Democrats picked soft-spoken John McSweeney of Wooster in Tuesday's primary to oppose Republican Gov. John W. Bricker's third term bid as voters renominated all but one of the state's congressmen.

A strong Roosevelt-administration supporter, McSweeney won over a field of five after a tight battle with State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who conceded defeat at 5:07 a. m. today—then walked from his state house office to McSweeney's Neil House headquarters to extend congratulations.

Returns from 8,410 of Ohio's 8,853 precincts in the associated press tabulation showed: McSweeney 99,335; Ferguson 94,867; Clarence H. Knisley 41,992; Walter F. Heer 33,660; and Frank Dye 11,164.

Former Congressman McSweeney, 51, making his first try for governor, did little campaigning but beat Ferguson's personal organization and candidates backed by metropolitan county "bosses" and former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Bricker, unopposed for a third term nomination, pulled 339,293 votes.

Martin L. Sweeney, Cleveland Democrat and 20th district representative for 12 years, was the only incumbent congressman beaten. He lost to Michael A. Feighan, who attacked what he termed Sweeney's "isolationist" stand.

Theirs was the bitterest battle of three Ohio congressional contests in which "isolationism" was the chief issue. Two Republicans, Reps. Charles H. Elston in the first (Cincinnati) district and John M. Vorys in the 12th (Columbus) district weathered charges that their pre-Pearl Harbor policies impaired the war effort. Democrats in the Seventh district nominated an army captain, George J. Smith, now located with the air force at Perry, Ga.

George H. Bender (R) and Stephen M. Young (D), both of Cleveland, were without a contest for renomination for the one congressional-at-large seat to be filled this year. They already are campaigning and political observers expect their Nov. 3 election clash to equal or eclipse the McSweeney-Bricker tilt.

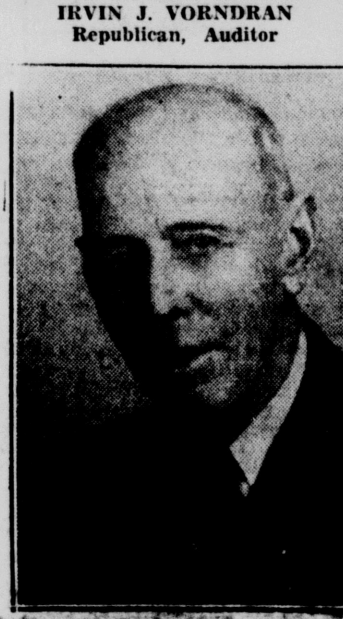

For other state offices here was the lineup after yesterday's exceptionally light balloting: Lieutenant governor—Paul M. Herbert (R) and George D. Nye (D); attorney general—Thomas J. Herbert (R) and Herbert S. Duffy (D); treasurer—Don H. Ebricht (R) and Robert S. Cox (D); secretary of state—Edward J. Hummel (R) and John E. Sweeney (D); Jan. 1 supreme court term—Judge Roy H. Williams (R) and William C. Dixon (D); for Jan. 2 supreme court term—Judge Edward C. Turner (R) and Willis W. Metcalf (D). The Herberts, Ebricht, Sweeney, Dixon, Turner and Metcalf were unopposed.

Their mother, Mrs. Lloyd Pearl, received picture cards from both boys in the same mail, one postmarked from a southern U. S. camp, the other from a foreign port. The pictures were identical.

Silver Shirt Leader Draws Long Jail Term In
Sedition Cause

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 12.—William Dudley Pelley, founder and leader of the Silver Shirts of America, was sentenced today to 15 years in prison in the first major sedition case since America's entry into the war.

Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell imposed the sentences after denying a defense motion for a new trial.

The dapper, 52-year-old Pelley, whom government attorneys called "a Benedict Arnold" and "an Aaron Burr" in their prosecution, was convicted a week ago of 11 counts of criminal sedition in connection with publications of the Fellowship Press, Inc., which he headed.

In passing sentence Judge Baltzell said he believed Pelley should be imprisoned "for the duration." Pelley could have been sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment and fined $10,000 on each count of the indictment under the Espionage act of 1917.

But Judge Baltzell said he preferred "to consider it one offense." No fine was imposed.

Brown Gets Five Years

Lawrence A. Brown, associated with Pelley in the Fellowship Press, was sentenced to five years in prison.

GERMANS PUSH ON AGAINST SOVIET

62nd Red Army Is Crushed
Nazi High Command
Reports

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN From German Broadcasts, Aug. 12.—The destruction of the bulk of the Soviet 62nd army, with capture of 57,000 prisoners, and the destruction of more than 1,000 tanks and 750 guns, was reported today by the German high command, which said this completed the great battle of the Don bend as other German troops were advancing deeper into the Caucasus mountains.

Since the spring campaign began 1,044,741 Red army soldiers have been captured, the high command reported in special and regular communiques.

It acknowledged that the Russians had resumed hot diversionary attacks northwest of Voronezh, on the South Central front, and in the areas of Rzhnev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and southeast of Lake Ilmen and on the Volkhov front. All these attacks were reported repulsed, however, in bitter fighting, much of it hand-to-hand.

The Soviet attacks on the Rzhnev front were made by numerically superior forces, the communique stated.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW Aug. 12.—Russian troops withdrew grudgingly, and fighting furiously, into the wild lands of the Caucasian foothills today as the German army lunged on between the Black and Caspian seas—its greatest prizes still ahead.

German columns were moving westward, almost within gunshot of the Black sea naval stations of Novorossisk and Tuapse, and southward toward the rich oil fields of Grozny and the Caspian sea beyond.

The Germans confronted the battered Russians at Krasnodar with numerically superior forces and launched attack after attack, today's mid-day communique said. Krasnodar is the main obstacle on the road to Novorossisk.

"The Germans are trying at all costs to cross to the southern bank of a river," the mid-day communique said. More than 1,000 Germans were killed and 12 tanks destroyed in this effort, the Russians said.

(The river mentioned probably is the Kuban, which flows from Krasnodar into the Black sea north of Novorossisk.)

GABLE ASPIRES TO BE AERIAL GUNNER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—Clark Gable, who needs no other introduction, was due to enlist in the U. S. army today—as a buck private.

The place: Somewhere in this immediate vicinity. The time: 2 p. m. Pacific War Time. The reason: "He doesn't want to sell bonds or pour pink tea. He wants to be a regular soldier."

Gable, 41, it was said, will enlist in the army air forces. After undergoing basic training, he hopes to go into the officers training school at Miami, Fla.

"He wants to be an aerial gunner," said an officer. Gable is a crack shot.

Not So Dead

Jack Breckenridge of R. D. 4, Salem, left his car standing on the Goshen Center-Diagonal road early yesterday morning after the car stalled from what the driver thought was a dead battery.

Breckenridge had walked on ahead toward his home when the car caught fire, apparently from a short circuit, the state patrol reported. The machine was badly damaged by the flames.

M. L. SWEENEY IS DEFEATED

Loses to Michael Feighan
In Torrid Congress
Battle

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12.—All of Ohio's incumbent congressmen were renominated in Tuesday's primary except fiery Martin L. Sweeney, Cleveland Democrat, who was described by his opponent as the "leader of isolationism" in war-torn political northern Ohio.

Sweeney, 57 years old and 12 years a congressman, lost the 20th district nomination to a man 20 years his junior, Michael A. Feighan, former Ohio legislator, ardent supporter of President Roosevelt's war aims and son of a wealthy Republican banker.

Two Republican congressmen, Charles H. Elston of the First (Cincinnati) district, and John M. Vorys of the 12th (Columbus) district, weathered political charges that pre-Pearl Harbor policies were "isolationist," as voters in the Seventh district gave the Democratic nomination to an army captain, George H. Smith of Springfield, Va.

Bender, Young Unopposed

Neither George H. Bender, Republican, nor Stephen M. Young, Democrat, was opposed for nomination for the major Nov. 3 congressional election contest, involving the congress-at-large seat. This will provide a state-wide ballot expression on national issues.

Due to a reapportionment resulting from the 1940 census, Ohio will have only one congress-at-large seat in 1943-44 instead of the present two.

For 22 district posts, Republicans nominated 11 candidates. In-

Nazi Broadcast Indicates
Mediterranean Fight
Is Continuing

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The British aircraft carrier Eagle has been sunk in the Mediterranean but a large part of the 22,600-ton warship's crew has been saved, the admiralty announced today.

A German broadcast heard here indicated the Eagle went down at the start of a battle which may be continuing between a British convoy and Axis submarines and warplanes.

The broadcast, quoting DNB, said a British "capital convoy," escorted by the bulk of the Mediterranean fleet, had been engaged in the western Mediterranean since last evening.

The original German report said the Eagle was sunk at mid-day. Adding to the scope of the reported action, the Italian high command said that one of its submarines scored two torpedo hits at dawn yesterday on "a large warship of unspecified type, strongly escorted."

The admiralty said at least one enemy submarine operating in the same area as the old carrier already had been sunk, indicating that the Eagle went down fighting.

German broadcasts last night said four torpedo hits sent her to the bottom in the western Mediterranean.

PRIMARY VOTE IS LIGHT ALL OVER COUNTY

Only 401 Republicans and 184 Democrats Visit
Salem Polls

LEWIS AND IMHOFF
ARE GIVEN LEADS

John McSweeney Favored
By Democrats In Governor Race

In county-wide primary voting which probably established new low records in most communities, including Salem, Columbiana electors presented winning margins to Commissioner John Smith, asking re-election Irvin Vorndran for auditor, John McBane Kerr for state representative, John Stephenson for state senator and Earl Lewis for congressman, all on the Republican ticket.

Democrats had no competition for county offices and only the Imhoff-Blake contest for congressman, with the incumbent Imhoff running away with the race, attracted any attention.

In every city and rural community in the county, voters interested in the war, or other pursuits, stayed away from the polls in large numbers.

Small Vote In Salem

The grand total of ballots in Salem reached 585, about 11 per cent of the possible total when the polls closed last night—401 Republicans and 184 Democrats; while 32 Republicans and 15 Democrats cast ballots in Perry township.

John E. Smith of St. Clair township, county commissioner, piled up decisive pluralities in the Wellsville, East Palestine, Columbiana, Lisbon and Salem districts. Only in East Liverpool did his nearest competitor, Louis Sanford, of East Liverpool, take away the lead. There Sanford polled 703 votes to Smith's 650. Smith's final total was 2647 to Sanford's 1136.

Irvin Vorndran, former bookkeeper in the auditor's office, later purchasing agent for the commissioners, walked away with the auditor nomination from Harry Lindell of East Liverpool, 3021 to 1568. Vorndran was victor in Lindell's own district, East Liverpool, 999 to 679.

John McBane Kerr, Yellow Creek township, running for state representative, lost only East Liverpool to his opponent, Don Reed of East Liverpool. Reed gathered in 837 votes there to Kerr's 738, but the latter was far enough in front in other major communities to more than offset this loss, finishing with 2635 to Reed's 1824.

John Stephenson, East Liverpool school teacher, rounded up a large Republican vote for the state senator nomination in Columbiana county, winning 3816 to 496 over Jack Preble, Jr., of Steubenville. Preble sometime ago enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Force and declared himself out of the race.

Lewis Wins In County

Earl Lewis of St. Clairsville, former congressman, easily captured the Republican vote in Columbiana county, polling 3,557 to 994 for Lee Woods, Martins Ferry mayor.

R. C. Heddlston of East Liverpool, on the Republican ticket, was given the county's vote for central committeeman, collecting 3161 votes, as compared with 543 for Fogle and 603 for Sedgwick.

Elizabeth M. Linard of Bellaire led the three-way race for committeewoman in the county, polling 1225 votes to defeat Novelle Brooks Cole of Yorkville, 1177, and Anna B. Wood of Steubenville, 1081.

On the Democratic slate, Mervin Clendenning of Wellsville won the committeeman's nomination from Eugene Scott of Martins Ferry, 730 to 391.

Democrats in the county gave John McSweeney a large plurality in the gubernatorial competition. McSweeney polled 638 votes and nearest competitor, Ferguson, 543.

INDIA IS NOT A THEORY

American interest in India long ago ceased to be that of onlookers watching political turmoil from a distance. India is one of the fronts in the war. American soldiers and equipment are there to try to offset whatever plans the Axis may put into effect. The state of India is not a debating problem, but one of the grim facts of World War II.

Great Britain has the primary responsibility for keeping India safe for the United Nations. Insofar as the United Nations can be said to have existence as a coalition founded on certain principles, Britain's allies have a right to expect that British officials will do nothing to injure their common interests in India.

The situation is touchy and obviously dangerous for all concerned. The most that Americans may hope for is that the British, with years of experience as administrators of the affairs of India, know what they are doing. It is impossible now to undo what has been done, or to accomplish any sudden change for the better. Great Britain and its allies must stand or fall on things as they are.

India, which was to have been an asset, may become a liability in the effort of the United Nations to win the war. Not only the British, but the Chinese, the Russians and Americans are vitally concerned. They are not concerned now with the fate of individuals in India, but only with their common fate, including that of all Indians. There is no pity to be wasted on the Gandhis.

OFFENSIVES ARE COSTLY

Admiral King's evident desire to cushion the shock of losses in the successful attack on Japanese bases in the Solomon Islands by explaining the difficulty of the offensive operation carried out probably reflects awareness of a problem in public relations. The question raised is whether or not such a problem exists.

Only a few Americans retain the illusion that this is war in the Hollywood style, with the dead arising to take part in the next scene when the director yells, "Cut!" They are braced for the casualty lists and the loss of valuable equipment. They even are prepared for defeat and humiliation to be encountered on the path to victory.

And who are "they"? "They" are the enlisted men, the selectees, the national guardsmen, the officers, the pilots, the sailors and all the Americans who are going to be in the thick of the fighting—the citizens who have the best right to judge the cost of war. "They" are the parents, the wives, the sweethearts, the relatives and friends of the fighting men. "They" are all Americans who are learning over again these days that nothing worth having is without its price—and that the price of victory is going to be very high.

It may be doubted that the public expects the navy or the army to explain its losses, particularly when they are incurred in offensive action. The only loss in the war, and it was the heaviest, that needed explanation was that at Pearl Harbor when this nation's armed forces were decimated because they were taken by surprise.

VOTING IN WARTIME

Time is being wasted worrying about the failure of voting in wartime to measure up to peacetime standards. Apathy to campaigners and neglect of the franchise when the United States is at war are not new.

Representative democracy is not geared normally to the exigencies of war; it is essentially a political structure for peace, whereas a dictatorship is essentially suited to belligerence.

In wartime, the United States must hope, therefore, that it can convert itself to war making. A dictatorship, on the other hand, exists only for war; it is rarely able to convert itself to peace making or peace keeping.

The United States now is converting itself to war making. The process is naturally exclusive of the preoccupation with politics that otherwise would occur in the year of a congressional election.

This does not signify necessarily that the people are indifferent. It means they are busy. They would like to shelve politics for the duration, though they know the elections must be watched. They hope to be able to do it with minimum effort, because they are preoccupied with other matters, not necessarily more important but certainly a thousand times more urgent.

PARKING PROBLEM EASED

The parking meter, a national institution, is feeling the war in eastern cities whose parking problem has been eased by gasoline rationing and scarcity of tires. Municipal Finance Officers association finds that June revenues per meter dropped 12 percent in gas-rationed states from income a year ago and 5 percent in other states, after analyzing parking meter revenue figures of 125 cities. The drop parallels a greater loss of revenue by the states from gasoline taxes.

There is nothing surprising about this, except that skeptics will note a strange frankness in the approach to the whole parking meter problem when revenue is the topic of the discussion. Municipalities have come to look upon the revenue as juiciest new sources opened to them by the ingenuity of man. At the same time, they have been obliged to pretend that what they really were interested in was doing something about the parking problem. To keep up appearances, they should utter a few shrieks of joy over the way gas and tire rationing have been solving the parking problem while raising hob with parking meter revenue.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, August 13

A DAY of difficulty and danger is read from the predominant mutual as well as lunar aspects. These hazards may arise suddenly and from unsuspected sources and result in tumult, upheaval, loss of substance, standing and physical energy as well. There may be threats and unpredictable events calling for calm and well-governed behavior as well as sound advice and support from such as can be depended upon for their sagacity, soundness and good intentions. Shun legal entanglements and safeguard papers and documents against loss, theft or fire.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by sudden upsets, reversals, difficulties and dangers, unless they maintain calm, restraint, and composure in whatever hazardous situations arise. Rash and turbulent conduct would be disastrous. Seek wise counsel of dependable and well-intentioned persons, shun legal entanglements and safeguard all property and papers, as well as physical safety and health. Patience, poise and optimism are enjoined. A child born on this day may have a hasty, reckless and temperamental nature, with the mental, emotional and physical energies under excitable stimuli, which may lead to reversals, losses and difficulties.

Elmer Davis, who was named by the Chief Executive to give to the public news of the progress of the war, says: "We could lose this war." And Elmer, we presume, was permitted by high authority, to give out this bit of "news."

The great satisfaction in seeing some one driving at 50 and 60 miles an hour is that soon they'll be off the streets and public highways, and cease to be a menace to traffic.

WEATHER CHANGES AFFECT HEALTH

Physicians of Old Watched It Closely

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE PHYSICIANS of ancient days of Greece and Egypt and Rome paid great attention to the effect of weather and climate on human life and health. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, left a work on "Air, Waters and Places."

All this lore was neglected by the modern physician after he became intellectually proud with his knowledge of bacteriology and body chemistry. It bids fair to have a renaissance with the patient observations and writings of two outstanding American scholars, Dr. William F. Petersen, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, and Dr. Clarence A. Mills, Professor of Experimental Medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

Of Interest in America

North America should be particularly interested in weather. Except for the great Asiatic land mass, America has more weather than any place else on earth. Not only is the annual variation in temperature over most of its surface between 20 degrees below zero on some winter days to 110 or more degrees above zero during some summer days, but the number of storms and storm tracks brought about at the interfaces of polar air masses and tropical air masses make sudden change in temperature, humidity and barometric pressure frequent experiences.

Weather changes create so many effects on human bodily status that they are hard to classify. Hot weather reduces blood pressure and cold spells raise it. Dr. Petersen, in a recent article, tells an interesting story of a young woman with a very changeable or labile vasomotor system who regularly had fainting attacks in the wake of cold storms.

The fainting did not occur with the cold period, but afterwards when the warm or hot reaction came on; then her blood pressure became so low that any unusual exertion would bring on a fainting spell. In an equable climate she would have become comfortable, but even in her normal environment the administration of epinephrine, which raised blood pressure, controlled the attacks.

The formula for the general body reaction to sudden cold is "A. R. S." (anoxia, reduction, sugar increase). Cold closes the superficial blood vessels, raising blood pressure and it rearranges the endocrine secretions, causing a feeling of stimulation and actually affecting sugar metabolism.

Reaction to Heat

The reaction to heat is "C.O.V." (catabolism, oxidation, vasodilatation). The superficial blood vessels dilate, the blood increases in acidity, the basal metabolism is increased, the potassium-calcium ratio is diminished, dehydration occurs with a consequent feeling of let-downness and fatigue.

These are the temporary reactions to sharp changes. After a hot or cold spell is established, the body adjusts itself and discomfort disappears.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. T.: Please let me know what causes one's toenails to fall off.
Answer: Probably ringworm infection.

J. P. G.:—Is there a cure or remedy that will leave the spells of bronchial asthma? Is there a difference between bronchial asthma and chronic bronchitis?

Answer: Bronchial asthma is usually due to sensitivity (allergy) to plant pollens, sometimes to animals—especially rabbits and cats and horses—or to certain foods or house dust. If you can find out what you are sensitive to and eliminate it, your asthma will be improved. Sometimes the asthma is due to chronic infection from sinus disease. Chronic bronchitis often produces wheezing like asthmatic wheezing, but the two conditions are not essentially alike.

That Extra Something!

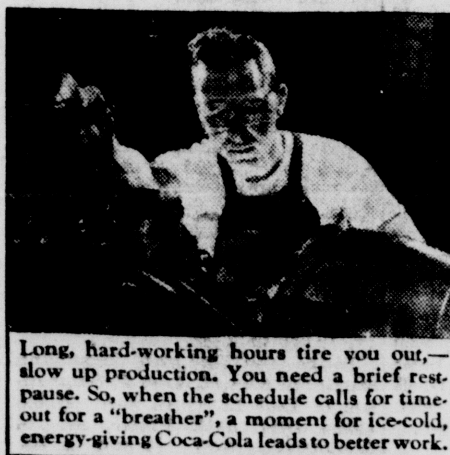

...You can spot it every time

SKILLED workers have "know-how." So have the makers of Coca-Cola. That's why Coca-Cola has that extra something. Almost anybody can make a soft drink, but nobody else can make Coca-Cola.

There's a finished art in its making which gives Coca-Cola a special quality... its unique taste comes from a blend of pure, wholesome essences,—refreshment that can't be copied.

No other drink gives this special plus... this unique taste and after-sense of refreshment. People have come to realize that nothing takes the place of Coca-Cola. To want refreshment is to think of ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coca-Cola, being first choice, is the first to go. Ask for it each time. No matter how short the supply, the quality of Coca-Cola will not be changed in any respect.

Long, hard-working hours tire you out—slow up production. You need a brief rest-pause. So, when the schedule calls for time-out for a "breather", a moment for ice-cold, energy-giving Coca-Cola leads to better work.

The best is always the better buy!

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

In the morning he had a temperature of 103. He didn't know it, but he felt a warm, almost cosy ache of all his limbs, as well as a tranquilizing vagueness of mind. She didn't know it either, but his flushed face and incoherent speech made her telephone for a doctor. A majority of the other occupants of the Owl on that first morning of peace were also flushed and incoherent, though from a different cause. The Biffer himself, sprawling disheveled, and half undressed, snored loudly on a sofa in the little room behind the private bar.
Frank, the bartender, boastful of never having touched a drop, languished in sober but melancholy stupor on the bench in the public bar, watching the maids sweep sideways and broken glasses into trays. Other persons, including a second bartender, a waiter, and several dilatory patrons who had either declined or been unable to go home, were not only fast asleep in various rooms and corridors, but likely to remain so till many more hours were past. It had been a night in the history of the Owl, as of the world.

The only doctor who heeded the call proved, on arrival, to be extremely bad-tempered. As she met him in the lobby he took a sharp look round, eyeing distastefully the groat figures visible through doorways. "Daresay you know how busy I am—three Bockley doctors down with the flu—I'm trying to do the work of five men myself, so I hope you haven't brought me here for nothing. I know Briggs—known him for years—he drinks too much and I've told him he'll die of it—what more can well as live the way he chooses anyhow, a doctor can't stop him." By this time she had led him upstairs and into the bedroom.
He walked across to the bed, took the look, and swung round angrily.
"What's the idea? Who is he?"
"He's been a soldier. He's ill."
"But I thought it was Briggs...."
"You had no right to drag me out here—who are you?"
"A friend of the Biffer—like yourself."
"Well, I've no time for new cases."
"But he's ill. Can't you see that?"
"How much did he drink?"
"Nothing. It isn't that."
"How do you know?"
"I was with him."
"Was his wife?"
"No."
"Well, what is he to you? And what's he doing here? You call me away from my regular patients—you tell me it's urgent—I hurry here because Briggs is an old friend—"
But by this time he had drawn back the blankets. "Why—why bless my soul, the man's in his uniform!"

"I told you—he's been a soldier."
"He's still a soldier—he belongs to a hospital."
"Aren't you going to help him at all?"

"Can't interfere in a military case—all I can do is notify the authorities. What's the fellow's name?"
"Ah, here it is—"
"But he's terribly ill."
"He'll be sent for."
"But you can't leave him like this!"

"You don't need to instruct me in my duty."
Smith half heard all this as he lay on the bed, his mind tremulous with fever and his body drenched in perspiration; he heard the door close and then saw her face coming towards him out of a mist.

"I bungled that, Smithy. I'm afraid the old boy's gone back to hell on you're here."

He smiled. He didn't care. She seemed to read that in his face. She went on: "Yes, you think it doesn't matter, you're just as soon go back —but would you, when you once got there? You don't really want to be in a hospital again... Or do you?"
He smiled again, more faintly. He was too ill to speak.

"Well, if you die, it'll be pretty hard to explain you being here, but if you weren't going to die I wouldn't be so pleased at having let you go. So you'd just better stay here and not die, Smithy."

He kept smiling as if the whole thing increasingly amused him.

Thus it happened that when,
towards twilight, the doctor returned to the Owl, striding into the lobby in an even greater hurry and temper than before, she met him there with answers rehearsed and ready.

"Well, young lady, I've made arrangements about that man. The Military Hospital will send an ambulance this evening."
"But he's gone!"

"What?"

She repeated: "He's gone."
The doctor flushed and seemed on the verge of an outburst, then suddenly began to cough. She thought he looked rather ill himself. When he could regain breath he said more quietly: "You'd better do some explaining. Where has he gone? How did he get away?"

She offered him a chair. "Maybe he wasn't so ill. Perhaps he was just drunk, as you said."

"Nonsense! He's a shell-shock case, if you know what that is—has delusions that people are against him. Men like that can be dangerous—might have a crazy fit or something." He began to cough again. "Now come on, don't waste my more of my time. Tell me where he is."

She was facing him steadily when all at once his coughing became worse; he struggled with it for a while and then gasped: "Where's Briggs? Let me talk to him about this!"

"He's out."

"Well, I'll call again later when he's finished my round." He seemed to have a renewal of both energy and anger as he stalked out of the room, for he shouted from the doorway: "It's all a pack of lies you're been telling—I know that much!"

But he did not call back later.

when he had finished his round. In fact he never did finish his round.
He collapsed over the wheel of his car half an hour later, summoning just enough final strength to pull up by the roadside. It was a lonely road and they did not find him till he was dead. The flu of 1918 was like that.

Later in the evening a military ambulance drove up to the Owl and drove away again after a few minutes. The Biffer was emphatic in his assurance that there must have been some mistake—nobody on his premises was ill. But he called the driver and the two attendants into the private bar and hospitably stood them drinks.

The flu had other victims: Biffer
Briggs himself, Frank the bartender, Annie the maid; they recovered. But an old man named Tom who for decades had oddjobbed in the Owl garden died quietly, like ten millions more throughout Europe, indeed the war during all its years had not taken so many. But because the larger claims were made without horror
they were surrendered without concern, and the Owl was far less perturbed when three fourths of its occupants were ill and near to death than on a night some months before when a German air raider had dropped a solitary bomb in a meadow miles away.

Meanwhile Lloyd George was organizing his khaki election; the world grew loud with promises; the ex-Kaiser was to be hanged; the losers must pay the whole cost of the war; the armies of the victors were all to come home and find work waiting for them; the new world was to be one of peace and plenty for Englishmen. Among all the promises a few things were real and immediate: a vote for the women, and gratuities to the men
as they put off their uniforms—sums in cash that ranged from the private soldier's pittance. The morning these were announced Paula took the newspaper upstairs along with the breakfast tray, but said nothing till she was holding a thermometer to the light. "Well, Smithy, you're down to nearly normal, so I reckon I can tell you the other good news—the government owes you some money." She read him the details and added: "So stop worrying—you'll be able to pay for everything soon."

"But in the meantime?"

"Nok what's bothering you?"

"I hate to seem inquisitive, but —I mean—you— you probably aren't so well off as—as to be able to afford—to help me—"

"Darling, I'm not well off at all,
but helping you isn't bankrupting me, either. And why should you hate to seem inquisitive?"

She sat on the bed waving the thermometer happily. "I'm afraid you're too much of a gentleman, old boy. After all, you don't know what you are, do you? Maybe you're a lord or an earl or something.
Can't you remember going to Eton?"

You talked a good bit lately while you were in a delirium, but it was all war stuff—not very helpful.
You've been pretty bad, incidentally —know that? This morning's the first time you've dropped below a hundred." She poured out a cup of tea. "All the others caught it too
—good job I didn't."

"You've been living here?"

"Living and lifesaving. The flu closed the theater so I'd have had nothing else to do, anyway."

"I still don't see how you can afford to help me like this."

"Darling, I'll let you into a secret
—I'm not paying for your room,
but if it makes you feel better, you can turn over anything you like as soon as the government gives you the money."

"That's another trouble. I can't be demobilized till I'm officially discharged from hospital."

"Well, hurry up and get better, then they'll discharge you quick enough."

"But—in the meantime—don't you see—I can't hide—like this—in somebody else's house!"

"But you don't have to hide. I've talked to the Biffer about you already."

"You metn he knows I'm here—and where I come from?"

"Yes, and he doesn't mind.
Doesn't give a rap, in fact. I knew I could fix it."

"But—why does he think you're doing all this for me?"

"Well, why do you think I am?"
She laughed. "It's just a hobby of mine. Now listen to this—it's the Biffer's idea, not mine. He says for the time being—when you've got over this flu and are strong enough
—why don't you do a bit in the garden same as old Tom used to?
If you like, that is. Might be good for you to have a quiet job in the fresh air—you wouldn't have to talk to people much. And it's lovely here
when the summer comes."

Something flicked against his memory. "You said that once before."

"Did I?"

"The night we came here—as we walked through the garden in the fog. You said—it's lovely here
when the summer comes."

"Well, it certainly is, but I don't remember saying it. And you're the one who's supposed to forget things!"

"That's why I'm always trying to remember them—things that have happened before."

The Biffer's not minding was a mild way of expressing his willingness to co-operate. He was, in truth, delighted to join in any outwitting of authority, which he visualized as the same malign power that had placed so many restrictions on his wartime management of the Owl.

PT-Boats at New Panama Canal Naval Base

A number of speedy PT-boats are shown lined up at a pier at the new United States naval base at Taboga Island, off the Pacific end of the Panama Canal. Taboga, a Panamanian Island, is located ten miles from the Canal entrance. Lieut. Comm. A. R. Montgomery is commander of the PT-boat squadron stationed at the new base.

Salvage Companies Seek Fortune In Scrap Metal

DETROIT — The depths and the shoals of the Great Lakes that have claimed thousands of ships and an untold number of lives since La Salle sailed his famed "Le Griffon" from Niagara to Green Bay and to her room in 1860 have begun to contribute to the war production effort of 1942.

Searching out precious scrap metal essential to the uninterrupted operation of the nation's steel mills,
the special projects salvage section of the war production board is giving impetus to salvage operations on all the wrecks that can be raised.

In addition to scrap, it expects to find that a number of craft, once brought to the surface, can be restored to cargo-carrying usefulness.

There may be only a few of these,
but none will be overlooked.

"If we can put back into service
a freighter that would cost upward of a million dollars to build new,
it would be distinctly worth while in the war effort, wouldn't it?"
asked Thomas Little, Jr., director of the salvage section.

A few days ago Little and William J. Spicer, his assistant, saw the first of the old ships, victims of wind, explosions or other mishap, brought to the scrap pile here. It was the battered and twisted hull of the oil tanker J. Oswald Boyd which foundered in upper Lake Michigan in 1936 while carrying a cargo of more than 900,000 gallons of gasoline.

Reclaims 1,200 Tons

Out of the ship, which looked as though its superstructure had been blasted away by gunfire, the Great Lakes steel corporation expects to reclaim more than 1,200 tons of metal. Under ceiling prices the scrap metal brings $17 a ton.

The entire shipwreck salvaging project is expected by WPB experts to yield upwards of 30,000 tons of scrap metal within the next two years. Before winter closes the locks and navigation generally, the salvage section experts hope to bring down several craft lost off desolate Keweenaw Point in Lake Superior
during the last decade and more.

One of these is the steel-hulled 438-foot City of Bangor which went down November 30, 1926, while carrying a cargo of automobiles. The WPB representatives declined to even guess at the volume of scrap the wreck might yield, beyond pointing out that it had a carrying capacity of 6,600 tons.

Hundreds of the ships which went down in the lakes in the days before storm warnings aided navigation never have been located. All those whose locations are known have been listed by the salvage section.

While the section is not greatly interested in old wooden hulls, it is checking on the salvage value of all craft. The boilers and propellers of some of these vessels would yield considerable scrap where the cost of raising them is not too great.

Seek Copper Cargo

One of the richest cargoes ever to go down in a lake mishap was in the hold of the steamer Pewabic, which had 300 tons of copper and other valuable material aboard
when it sank August 9, 1865, following a collision with the steamer

How to get a lot more miles from every gallon of gasoline

What to do about YOUR CAR

GET UP TO 10% more miles-per-gallon by such a simple thing as keeping spark plugs clean! Dirty, worn plugs can easily waste as much as 1 gallon out of every 10.

What to do about YOUR DRIVING

UNCLOG THE PORES of your air filter. A dirty air filter acts as a choke—wastes a whole lot of gas. Should be cleaned every 1,000 to 2,000 miles.

What to do about TIRE INFLATION

WRITE YOUR OWN TICKET on the biggest single gas-saver of all—slower driving! At 50 you use almost 25% more gas per mile than at 30—at 60, almost 50% more! The slower you drive the more you save—it's up to you.

What to do about GASOLINE

ONCE EVERY WEEK, sure, check your tires and keep them at the recommended pressure. Driving on soft tires is like driving through mud—takes extra power and wastes gas!

Even if you only do a few of these things you'll notice a big improvement. And if you do all of them—and keep doing them—you'll likely find you're able to go just as far on 3 or 4 gallons as you now go on 5!

ELIMINATE THE EXTRA DRAG that needless friction puts on your car's motor. Chassis lubrication and oil changes every 1,000 miles will cut away that friction "anchor."

DON'T BE A "COWBOY." Starting like a flash and stopping "on a dime" is fun—sure—but, man, how it eats up the gas! Take it easy and you'll get a lot more miles of useful driving.

STEADY DOES IT. "Pumping" the accelerator—constant speeding up and slowing down—is like using a fire hose to fill a thimble. You lose more than you use!

COURT RULES ON WAR CHEST FUNDS

May Be Used For Various Relief Agencies, Is Ruling

LISBON, Aug. 12.—Funds of the East Liverpool War Chest, raised during the first World war, which now total approximately $54,000, may be used for various relief agencies during the present war emergency, Judge Joel H. Sharp ruled in common pleas court here Tuesday afternoon in an entry requested by trustees of the fund who sought clarification in the matter.

Trustees of the War Chest fund, which first made its appearance in court in 1923 and has since been fought through the courts with no decision until the recent finding for a settlement of $40 per member for the four East Liverpool veterans' organizations, have been desisted in recent months with requests for contributions to various service organizations, but have been at a loss to determine whether funds over and above the $40 per member, amounting to approximately $18,000, might be used for that purpose.

The matter was submitted to Judge Sharp who authorized the trustees to make distribution in accordance with previous court rulings "that the funds were contributed for general war needs and war relief work and might be distributed as the trustees deem best in order to promote patriotism, and sustain and help those serving in the military and naval forces of the United States, and especially soldiers and sailors in the vicinity of East Liverpool." However, disposition include funds allocated to the service organizations in a former opinion by the court.

The ruling by Judge Sharp further states that distribution of funds of the East Liverpool War Chest made by the board of trustees of the fund and approved by common pleas court, "shall in no way affect, impair or waive the right of appeal of any of the parties to this action."

"That's right," was her laconic reply. "They shake a little too much."

AIDING WAR EFFORT IS QUOTA'S OBJECT

The Quota club, meeting last evening at the Memorial building, discussed "How the Quota Club Can Help in the War Effort". The discussion was led by the president, Miss Irene Slutz.

It was voted that the club contribute $25 to the funds being raised to supply kits for the U. S. soldiers when leaving the country.

This movement is headed by the national chapter of the Red Cross, and Mrs. Joseph Bloomberg has charge of the work in Salem.

Salem has been asked to contribute 400 of these kits at a cost of $1 each.

For a more direct contact with the armed forces it was decided that each member should "adopt" a soldier, and send him boxes and letters from the Quota club.

The club is sponsoring a movie for the benefit of their war work, Walt Disney's "Fantasia", in technicolor, at the State theater Thursday and Friday, Sept. 3 and 4. Tickets may be secured from any Quotaian.

The dinner, in charge of Miss Ruth Obenour and Miss Bess Hantell, was served at a table attractively decorated with calendars and zinnias.

and convicted with him, received a five-year sentence.

Miss Agnes Marian Henderson, Pelley's secretary for several years and the third person convicted in the case was given a two-year suspended sentence.

Miss Henderson who wept through the proceeding, was asked by Judge Baltzell if she could "readjust" her life "and get away from this organization."

"If you don't feel that you can, we might as well impose the sentence right now," added the judge.

Miss Henderson finally regained composure and sobbed to Floyd G. Christian, defense attorney, that she could. Christian relayed her decision to the court and Judge Baltzell pronounced the two-year sentence, suspending it for five years.

"If you violate the suspended sentence," Judge Baltzell told her, "the judgment can be withdrawn and a new sentence imposed. If you violate this, I'm going to make it five years."

The Fellowship Press, also convicted, was fined $5,000.

F. C. TROLL JEWELER

O.K. TOJO_

you asked for it!

YOU dished it out, with a head start by treachery—now we're going to see how you can take it!

We're ganging up on you, Tojo, in a way you and your Nazi friends don't understand.

Spreading like wildfire from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico is our Payroll Savings Plan—get that, Tojo? Not confiscation—savings.

By the tens of millions, workers and employees of plants in every state of our country are cooperating with their unions and with management.

Of their own free will they're agreeing to put ten percent—a dime from every dollar—of their earnings in United States WAR BONDS.

Every payday the plant management sets aside this ten percent, then, each time it adds up to $18.75, the worker gets his Bond.

See, Tojo? Hundreds of millions of good U. S. dollars are going into the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships to blast you right out of your sandals!

And we're paying for it... the workers and employers... the farmers, doctors, lawyers... all of us of our own free will.

And—because this is the American way of doing things—we're building our own financial security, too, against the day when the war will be over—when we've shown you what decent, clean, free people can do.

Every year those War Bonds of ours increase in value, Tojo, until, after ten years, Uncle Sam hands us back TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS for every $18.75 we invested in beating you.

Get it, Tojo? It isn't the Jap way, the Nazi way, nor the Fascist way.

It's the free American way!

So, when you see those clouds of planes over your troops, your ships and your factories—when the bombs come at you

5 Reasons Why

① By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.

② You prove that you are a patriotic American.

③ You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.

④ You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.

⑤ You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

spitting lead—and our good American boys get you on the run—remember, we're paying for it—Smith, and Harrigan, and Cohen, and Godowsky, and Leblanc, and Havlek, Americans all, in a free country.

So take it, Tojo—you asked for it!

BOOK STORE LOSES TO RED STEER 7-2

The Book Store, who only yesterday gained undisputed possession of first place in the B league when Mullins were beaten, suffered a 7-2 defeat at the hands of the Red Steer at Centennial park last night and as a result are tied for the top spot again.

The Steers pounded Pitcher Paul Horning of the Bookies for five runs in the first frame and as it turned out that rally was sufficient. The league leaders were unable to hit their pace as Lanney blanked them for the first five innings.

Lanney collected two of the six hits allowed by Horning while Dick Culbertson smashed out three hits in three trips to the plate to take honors for the Book Store.

In the other Class B tilt, the Smith team scored its first win of the round in defeating Meissner's 9-8 in 10 innings. Smiths were out-hit 13 to eight and committed seven errors to Meissner's one but still capped the decision.

Jim Hobart collected four of the nine hits garnered by the Smiths team off the slants of Cain while Al Freed again led Meissner's with three blows in five jaunts to the home rubber.

GULDAHL MYSTERY MAN OF LINKSDOM FOR THREE YEARS

"Cinderella Man" Hasn't Won Big Tourney Since 1939

A few years back there was a gent named John Montague who got himself known as the mystery man of golf. You remember him, of course. He was he one who could knock a sparrow off a telephone wire with a six iron and tour a course in par figures using a hoe or billiard cue.

Four years ago some of the golf critics were showering him with the choicest adjectives they could lay their tongues and typewriters to. The big Texan was the best yet. Greatest of the great. Greater than—yes, it was treason—greater than Emperor Jones.

He had won the Western Open three straight years, 1936-37-38. He had won the 1939 Masters with a blistering 279, scoring a 33 on the final nine to beat Sam Snead.

Guldhall was known as the "Cinderella Man" of golf. After early successes he had slipped so badly he took to selling automobiles for a living. He launched a comeback a couple of years later that found him winning the Radix Trophy with a total tournament average of 71.53.

He even went back to Oakland Hills to play a few rounds, hoping that the scene of one of his greatest triumphs might somehow bring back the spark but the psychology didn't work.

HARTFORD PUNCHER IS FUTURE CHAMP

Willie Pep Is Winner In 44 Straight Pro Bouts

HARTFORD, Conn.—Hartford, home of two former world's featherweight champions, has a third one in the making.

Willie's last outing, the first time he had gone more than eight rounds, was against Abe Denner, and the way he took the New England featherweight title away from the Boston boxer was like snatching junior's lollipop. Denner, though he has a spotty record, holds decisions over many top-notch featherweights, and the 12-round win boosted Pep's stock considerably.

Pep is the antithesis of his fellow-townsmen, former champions, Louis "Kid" Kaplan and Christopher "Bat" Battalino. They, Battalino, especially, were bulldog battlers who loved toe-to-toe slug-fing.

Moves Very Fast Pep doesn't have to slug. Extremely fast, he nails his man and slips away like a wraith. His opponents' punches land where he isn't. He punches just as fast with one hand as the other. More than one Pep foe has slipped away from Willie's left hook only to catch a solid right squarely in the whiskers the barest fraction of a second later.

He beat Johnny Compo and Joe Iannotti, considered fair-to-middlin' featherweights, without losing a single round.

His handlers have brought him along carefully. Joey Archibald, ex-champion, and Denner, are the only "name" fighters he has met.

AL MILNAR'S BID FOR NO-HIT GAME SPIKED BY CRAMER

Stellar Southpaw Allows But Two Safeties In 14-Inning Tie

Fans who like their baseball close must be getting an occasional thrice these days out of the way the other first division clubs are scrapping for the consolation prizes.

The Cleveland Indians yesterday battled the Detroit Tigers for 14 innings without a score on either side. While the Tribe missed a chance to retake second place in the American league, the deadlock produced the nearest thing to a no-hit game in the current campaign.

After playing to a standoff in the twilight half of a doubleheader, the two teams came back under the lights and Detroit triumphed, 32-0.

Thus the Boston Red Sox, who stopped the Yankees 3-2 in an 11-inning daylight tilt, retained possession of second place at least for another day.

At the same time, the New York Giants recaptured third place in the National league from Cincinnati by beating the Boston Braves, 6-4, while the Reds were going down before the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0.

At Cleveland, Lefty Al Milnar of the Indians bid seriously for the first no-hitter since Lon Warneke turned the trick for the St. Louis Cardinals against the Cincinnati Reds last Aug. 30, and nearly made it.

There were two out in the ninth inning when Roger Cramer singled for the first blow off Milnar. But the Indians also were held scoreless by Tommy Bridges, although he yielded nine hits. The only other blow off Milnar in the five extra frames was a single by Rudy York in the 13th.

Doubleheader Today At the end of 14 innings, the game was halted by darkness and an American league rule that won't permit daylight contests to finish under lights. It went into the books as a scoreless tie, to be played off today as part of a doubleheader.

Dizzy Trout pitched the Tigers to victory in the second game, limiting the Tribe to seven hits while his mates pounded Mel Harder and Harry Eisenstat for a dozen blows.

All this happened within a few hours after Lou Boudreau signed a new contract to manage the Indians for three more years.

Detroit's victory enabled the Tigers to regain fifth place, with the help of the St. Louis Browns who snapped a nine-game winning streak for the Chicago White Sox. Denny Galehouse pitched the Browns to a 9-2 triumph, tossing a four-hitter at the White Sox, which pushed them back to sixth place.

Another night affair, the Washington Senators downed the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-1, behind Buck Newsom's five-hit pitching.

While the Brooklyn Dodgers were idle, the St. Louis Cardinals reduced the margin between them in the National league to eight and a half games by whipping the Chicago Cubs, 7-2.

RENOMINATE FISH, PRESIDENT'S FOE

New York Voters Give Veteran Legislator 3-To-1 Edge

(By Associated Press)
Pre-war foreign views as a general political issue were discounted in at least four of five states today as primary returns gave a wide majority of office-holders victories over opponents who had assailed them as isolationists.

Example number one in national interest was the veteran Representative Hamilton Fish, pre-war "harbor critic" of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, who won Republican nomination in the President's home district over three opponents in yesterday's balloting.

Continues Fight
Wendell L. Wilkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee who had joined with Fish's intra-party opponents, asserted in commenting on the congressman's lead that "for the sake both of the country and of the Republican party the fight for his elimination must be continued."

Renominated three to one, Fish observed that "these pre-war issues were sunk at Pearl Harbor and every fair-minded American knows it and resents attempts to revive them."

Other New York congressmen who weathered the cry of before-the-war-isolationism included Representative Edwin A. Hall, Democrat; Republican; Daniel A. Reed, veteran New York Republican; Vito Marcantonio, American labor party left wing leader, and three New York City Democrats, William B. Harry, James A. O'Leary and Martin J. Kennedy.

But in Nebraska, Representative Harry B. Coffey campaigned again in his congressional record prior to the war, and lost the Democratic senate nomination to Foster May, Omaha radio announcer.

The Republican nomination to the senate seat now held by George W. Norris, veteran Independent, was won by Kenneth S. Wherry, Republican midwest director. Norris did not compete in the primary but his friends have predicted he would enter the general election again as an independent.

Select Delegates
Meanwhile, selection of delegates to New York state's Democratic convention, Aug. 19, officially started the battle for nomination pledges for Senator James M. Mead and State Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., in a test of presidential influence of selection of the party's nominee for governor.

Mead carries the endorsement of Mr. Roosevelt and Bennett is supported by James A. Farley, state party chairman and the President's former campaign manager.

Senator John Thomas of Idaho, also labeled a non-supporter of administration measures before the war, accumulated a wide lead for Republican renomination.

The Arkansas run-off primary gave former Representative John L. McLellan the Democratic nomination for senator over Attorney General Jack Holt.

OTTAWA BOOMING WITH WAR TRADE

Canadian City Undarkened By Blackouts, Does Big Business

OTTAWA, Ont.—War has not yet dimmed the night-time sparkle of Canada's "Little Washington," one of the few capital cities of the world which has not seen the lights blocked out from the bomber or dimmed to help defeat the submarine.

Attack by air seems remote in this island city. No one sees any immediate need of a dimout. So the lights glow and the floodlights glare when darkness comes—a strange contrast to the somberness of American coastal cities after nightfall.

Up on Parliament hill, the huge gray stone buildings with their tall spires and towers reaching into the sky are sheathed in the beams of many spotlights. Downtown main streets are bright with lights and multi-colored advertising signs.

Like Washington, Ottawa has a great many more women than men, most of them clerical workers in expanded government agencies or wartime organizations. Many women are in the uniforms of the Canadian Women's Army corps, and the women's division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

You can almost pick out the men who have returned from overseas by the way they walk the streets looking at the lights. . . . Even though Ottawa is not a large city. The other night a young lieutenant who had just returned from overseas duty with the RCAF was taking in the sights.

"You know," he said, "you forget how much the lights really mean to you until you return. Now I can't look at them enough. They are beautiful. You feel like you want to reach out and give the light a friendly pat."

No Sign Of Importance
Except for the many uniforms, the flags, posters and army vehicles which roll through the city, there is little outward evidence that Ottawa is the nerve center of the Dominion's war machine.

Yet Ottawa is a boom city. The hotels are jammed. The streets are crowded. Taverns keep a river of ale flowing to thirsty customers. Rents are high. Eating places do a rush business. Theaters, all showing American films, are filled.

With all the bustle, however, the city has an atmosphere of reserve that seems to hold a check on the spirits of the endless crowds. You don't see many boisterous demonstrations.

Ottawa has no gay night spots itself due to blue-law restrictions, and so the clubs and dance halls on the Quebec side of the Ottawa river are stormed with hordes. The dance floors are packed like a can of restless sardines with no one able to do much dancing without stepping on somebody's toes or being stepped on.

"Peace, Justice For All"

PHILADELPHIA—A masher grabbed a 34-year-old woman's arm, then staring down the muzzle of a pistol, heard her bark: "I'll blow your head off."

He hollered for help. The police arrested him for assault and battery; her for carrying a pistol without a permit even though there weren't any bullets in it.
